CARRAWAY TOLD OF DEFALCATION

Evidence in Trial of Former Bank Teller in Newbern.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Newbern, N. C., April 27.—The trial of J. R. B. Carraway, defaulting teller of the National Bank of Newbern, began in the Federal Court this morning. When the trial opened, the attorneys for the defendants asked that the bills be squashed, but their motion was denied. Then they asked that the case of Carraway, as principal, and C. L. Stevens and J. T. Taylor, as accessories, be separated. This was argued, and the point made that while Stevens or Taylor might each be connected with the Carraway case, yet Stevens in no way could be connected, although the bill of indictment named him jointly and severally with Taylor in the case. This motion was granted, and the case of Carraway was at once taken up, but court was adjourned until 12 M. to allow the attorneys to consider a new bill of indictment, which was returned by the grand jury late yesterday afternoon, and which the district attorney wished to consolidate with the original bill.

When court assembled at 12 o'clock, the bills were considered, and Carraway pleaded not guilty to the bill of indictment of forty-five counts, covering ninety typewritten pages, and charging him with embezzlement, false entries on the books, and misusing the funds of the National Bank of Newbern.

The first witness was G. H. Roberts, cashier of the bank for forty years. Mr. Roberts said Carraway was teller, that he was elected yearly, and that he was first elected in January, 1887. A. H. Ward, a director of the bank, and also its attorney, was then put on the stand. He stated that Mr. Roberts sent for him, told of the defalcation, and that Carraway was present and confessed to a shortage of from $50,000 to $80,000, that it was caused by overdrafts of certain parties. Carraway prepared a statement, which showed a shortage of $115,000. Carraway turned over to the bank about $20,000 worth of property and securities, and that a small dividend had also been received from the receiver of J. P. Taylor.

John Dunn, vice-president and director of the bank, was put on to corroborate the evidence of Mr. Ward, and as to Carraway's confession. When court reconvened after dinner, Mr. Ward and Mr. Roberts were recalled and put under a severe cross questioning by L. I. Moore. Mr. Roberts was forced to admit that he did not recollect many of the transactions, although in his own handwriting, and he was badly confused. Mr. Carraway was in court, accompanied by his wife and brother. He is represented by Moore & Dunn, E. M. Green and Judge H. R. Bryan.

WOMAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Throws Herself in Front of Train, but Is Rescued.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Cape Charles, Va., April 27.—Mrs. Anderson Melvina attempted suicide at Dover this morning by throwing herself on the railroad tracks near the Liberty Brand crossing factory. The engineer of the southbound passenger train saw the woman and stopped his train within a few feet of her.

She was carried into the baggage car, where she declared "this was her time to die." She attempted to jump from the moving train, but was restrained.

When the station was reached she was turned over to the police authorities, who took her to Kent county jail.

CHAMPION MAIL CARRIER.

Splendid Record Made by Yankin County Man.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Winston-Salem, N. C., April 27.—Frank Day, of Jonesville, Yadkin county, is the champion mail carrier of the State. At the age of fourteen years he lost his right arm. The year after the war closed he secured a job as mail carrier on the route from Elkton to Huntsville, a distance of twenty-five miles, and he has been in the service ever since, traveling a distance of 87,418 miles. During these forty-five miles of service he never lost a mail lock, was never more than fifteen minutes behind schedule time, and more than half the time the trip was made on foot. He is now sixty years old and still traveling the road three times each day, except Sunday, from Elkton to Jonesville.

RAPID PROGRESS IN WILLIAMSON TRIAL

All Witnesses for State Have Given in Their Evidence.

BATTLEFIELD COMMISSION

Body of White Man Found in Marsh in Chesterfield

Times-Dispatch Bureau,
109 North Sycamore Street,
Petersburg, Va., April 27.—The Commonwealth made rapid progress in the Williamson murder trial to-day, concluding the testimony for the State this afternoon. Many witnesses were put on the stand during the morning session, and apparently a strong circumstantial case was made against the prisoner.

Mrs. Julius A. Williamson, after a married life of about one year, was taken suddenly ill after eating dinner on the afternoon of June 9 of last year, dying within a few hours in great agony. Dr. J. E. Smith, who was called to attend her, yesterday afternoon testified that she died of arsenical poisoning, and that on analysis he found arsenic in the meal, of which the bread she ate at dinner was made. Dr. W. H. Taylor, of Richmond, testified that on analysis of the dead woman's liver and stomach he found white arsenic, but none in the meal. The undertaker, who embalmed the body, stated there was no arsenic in the fluid they used. Suspecting, from the rumors of the cause of her death, that some future analysis of the organs might be demanded, they were careful to use a fluid containing no poison.

Witnesses examined to-day were Chief of Police Ragland, who arrested Williamson in Tarboro, N. C., after he had left Petersburg following his wife's death, and of conversations had with him. Williamson subsequently broke jail here, and fled to the West. He was traced to a military post in Wyoming, where he had enlisted in the United States Army under an assumed name. Chief Ragland and Detective Heelan went after him and brought him back, and this fact was testified to.

John J. Kiersey, of Chesterfield county, father of Mrs. Williamson, testified that because of the character of the prisoner he would not allow them to be married at his home. They came to Petersburg to be married. He had helped them along in various ways at different times. He heard nothing of his daughter's illness until, after her death, and when he looked on the body he declared, because of the suddenness of her death, that she had been poisoned, and declared that she ought not be buried without some investigation of the case. He said that he had never made any will in favor of his daughter, because he had nothing to bequeath. This statement was made because of a letter said to have been written by his daughter to her husband in reference to a will he

Since John Quit Drinking

By John's Wife.

I'm the happiest little woman
In all this little town;
And my merry laugh and singing
Takes the place of sigh and frown.
For JOHN HAS QUIT HIS DRINKING
And is like himself once more,
And the world is just a paradise
With such happiness in store!

One day I read some verses—
"Mary, Mary," he sang,
And I said, "That's John exactly,
And I'll send and get the same."
So I went for GOLDEN REMEDY
(As you can see by the label)
And I put it in his tea.
And it didn't taste a little bit;
Had no odor, so you see
It was smoothest kind of sailing
For little Doctor Me.

And I watched and prayed and waited
And hoped some day to confide
And I didn't have the greatest faith.
I'm ashamed now to confess.

And John never thought a minute
He was being cured of drink,
And soon he was as well as any one,
It makes me cry to think
Just makes me cry for gladness,
I'm so proud to be his wife—
Since he is cured of drink on the coupon
And leads a nice new life.

"Since John quit drinking"
I can't say it times enough!
And hates and loathes a liquor
As he would a poison.
And when I say my prayers at night,
As thankful as can be—
I pray for John the more of all—
Then GOLDEN REMEDY.

had made. For eleven years he carried a policy for $105 on the life of his daughter, payable to him, and this was collected and used to help pay the expenses of the exhumation of her body and the analysis of her viscera. L. A. Davenport, an insurance agent, testified that some six months or more before her death, Williamson took out a policy for $105 on the life of his wife, which he collected two days after her death. Her death was not reported to him by Williamson, but by others. When he went to get proof of death, he asked Williamson as to the cause, and he answered that he did not know, but that his wife was in delicate condition by reason of recent motherhood. Subsequently Williamson said he did not worry about the reports about his wife, as most people would, because it would do no good.

Charles Archer, of Detroit, Mich., a prisoner in the jail with Williamson, testified to conversations with the latter about his troubles out in Texas when he had borrowed money from the relatives of his wife there, and to receiving several confidential notes from him. In one of these the prisoner talks freely about his wife and troubles, and speaks of himself as a "hero of circumstances," and of his wife knowing all about his marriage in Texas.

Mr. Richard Williamson, connected by marriage with the prisoner, who was at the latter's home on the afternoon of his wife's death and saw on the table a piece of corn bread and some ham and cabbage left from dinner. A few minutes after the woman's death Williamson asked the witness to get his wife's insurance policy and keep it for him, which she did.

Miss Baugh testified that she lived near the Williamsons and was intimate with them. She called there before dinner on the fatal day and saw Mrs. Williamson nursing her baby. She saw Williamson in the cook room with some meal in a plate and mixing something white with it. She asked him what he was doing and he replied that he was fixing something for his sick chickens. He was not known to have any chickens.

Mrs. Della Brooks was intimate with the Williamsons, and the two women exchanged visits two or three times a day. Mrs. Williamson did the cooking. The witness was with her when she was ill and when she died. Williamson told her he thought his wife had been poisoned by eating cabbage which had not been washed clean. Mrs. Brooks said she got some of Mrs. Williamson's meal and fed it to her chickens and it killed them all. Later she got some more of the meal, with Williamson's consent, and sent it to Dr. Smith for analysis.

Dr. Smith testified to finding arsenic in this meal.

Williamson did not own any chickens.

The defense began its testimony this afternoon.

Pennsylvania Battlefield Commission.

The members of the Pennsylvania Battlefield Commission arrived in the city to-day, and held probably their last official meeting to-night in the Shirley Hotel. The commission is composed of Major Isaac R. Brown, of Curry, Pa., president; Colonel M. A. Embick, of Carlisle; Captain George W. Aughenbaugh, of York; Captain W. S. Seabold, of Anville; Rev. Henry Whitaker, of Mt. Carmel, and Major A. C. Hulse, of Gettysburg. The commission is charged with the duty of erecting a large monument to the memory of the battle of Gettysburg, which was held near the town of Gettysburg, Pa., on July 1, 1863. The monument will be erected on the site of the battle, and will be dedicated to the memory of the brave soldiers who fought and died there.

Accompanying the commission is Major Philip Twining, of New York, and the Fifth United States Engineers, who helped lay out the general fortifications around Petersburg, and who has not been here since the war. The commission will visit the marker and monument.

As has been stated, the commission has placed the care of the monument and marker in the hands of the Ladies' Memorial Association of Petersburg, which has accepted the trust of keeping them in condition and of decorating them annually on the 30th of May. A city of Petersburg bond of $1,000 was purchased, the interest thereon to be devoted to the expense of caring for these monuments.

Woodmen's Camp Organized.

Maple Camp, Woodmen of the World, was organized Monday evening at City Point by District Deputy R. E. Mayes, of this city, with a large membership. The officers elected are: Consul Commander, H. L. Moore; Adjutant General, George M. Murrel; Banker, Benj. A. Fenner; Clerk, Henry Sherman.

General News.

It is authoritatively announced that the new passenger station of the Norfolk and Western Railway will be thrown open to the public next Saturday.

Mrs. Rebecca Jane Jenkins, wife of R. L. Jenkins, died last evening at her home on South Adams Street. Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. John Pilcher, of Roanoke.

William R. Beasley, soliciting freight and passenger agents of the Norfolk and Western Railway, has gone to Cincinnati to attend the annual reunion of traffic managers.

work, and the others are winding up. Some fear is expressed that a very close census has not been taken, as it is known that many people have not yet been called on, and the probability is that the Chamber of Commerce will take some action in regard to the matter to see that Petersburg does not suffer.

High Priestess of Colored Holy Jumpers Enjoys Single Happiness.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Roanoke, Va., April 27.—"Mother Johnson," the high priestess of the colored branch of the Holy Jumpers, who lives on a reservation known as the White Lot, in the town of Salem, last night had her new husband, James Woody, arrested and jailed, charging that she feared the irritable helpmate would do her bodily injury. In Police Court to-day the leader of the Jumpers said she would not prosecute Jim if he would fix up his belongings and leave, never to come around within the scope of her vision. The man accepted the terms, and quickly shook the dust of the White Lot and of Salem town from his feet.

"Mother Johnson" has been prominent in Salem and Roanoke for several years. She has a big following, and lives in splendor.

FORCES LINED UP FOR FIGHT TO-DAY

Danville Citizens to Vote on Question of Licensing Saloons.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Danville, Va., April 27.—The eve of the wet and dry election to be held here Thursday shows but little change in the conditions which have existed here for the past several days.

To-night, the voters heard many speeches, both for and against licensing the saloon.

The Academy of Music was packed to the doors here to-night with persons to hear Hon. Eugene Withers and several other local speakers, who spoke in favor of licensing the saloons, while at Ridge Street Tabernacle a large crowd was present to hear Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson, of Alabama, who spoke under the auspices of the "drys." Mr. Hobson was introduced by Rev. Graham Lambeth, former pastor of Mount Vernon Church, who now resides in this city. Both sides are claiming victory.
